Dear Mr. Carver:

Thanks very much for spending some time with our summer study group at the beginning of our deliberations. The comments and information you provided were most valuable, especially as we proceeded with the subsequent briefings.

We now have a clearer idea of just where our group might be useful and will be devoting most of the summer to developing a few areas that appear to be critical.

With kind personal regards and, again, thank you for taking the time to come to Wellesley.

Sincerely yours,
